INTRODUCTION

1.1 Overview

Starting a new company can be an exciting and rewarding experience, but it also requires careful planning and analysis to ensure that the business is viable and successful.

There are several key areas that you should focus on when conducting a startup company analysis. Conducting a thorough analysis of these areas can help you identify potential challenges and opportunities, and develop strategies to address them. It is also important to regularly review and update your analysis as the business progresses, in order to adapt to changing market conditions.

1.2 Purpose

A startup analysis is essential to the success of any startup business. It allows entrepreneurs to identify the key areas that need improvement and make necessary changes early on. Doing a startup analysis also allows startups to track their progress and ensure that they are on track to achieve their goals. A startup is a company that's in the initial stages of business.

Data analytics tools are becoming increasingly important for startups to track and analyze their data. This article provides a practical guide to increasing startup success through data analytics.
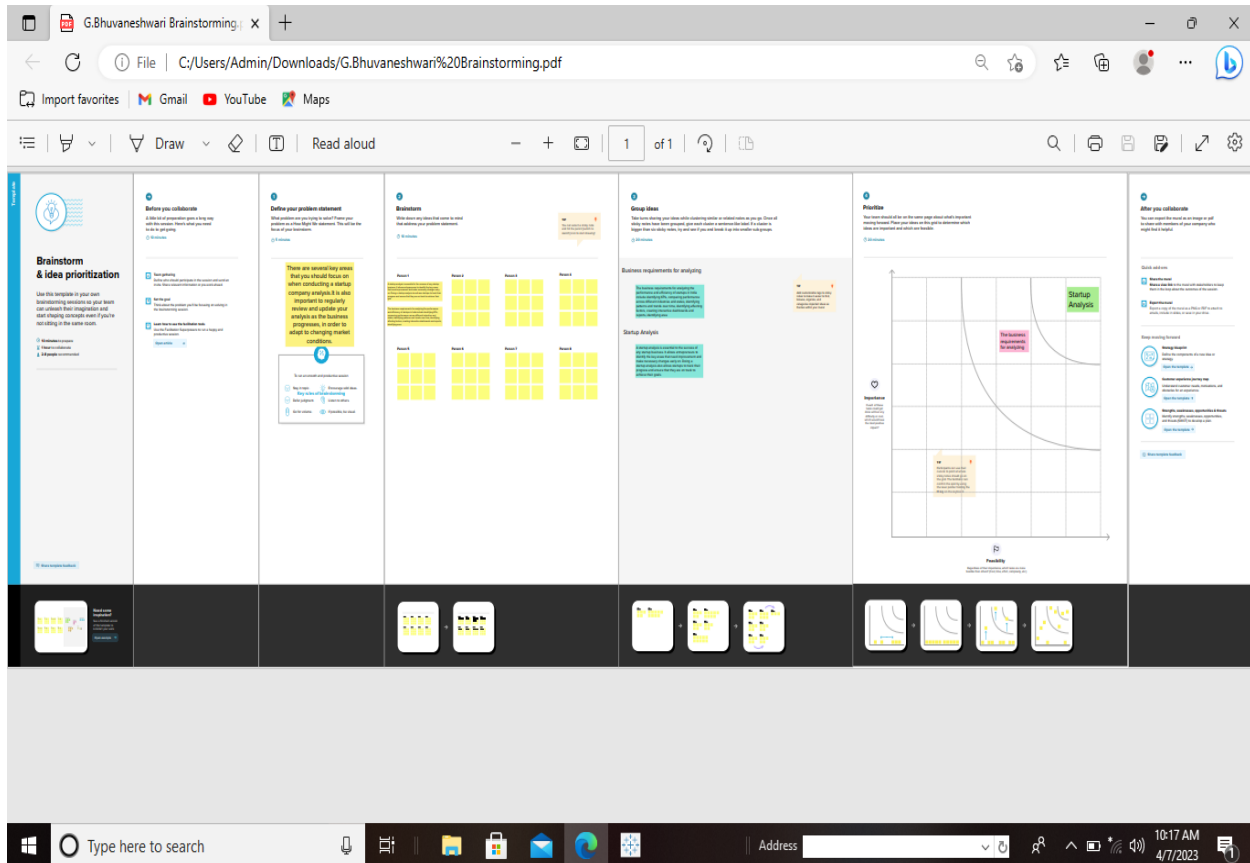

Data analytics can also help you identify which areas of your business are most profitable and which ones need more attention. This can help you prioritize your resources accordingly, making sure that you're investing in the areas that are most likely to succeed.

Dashboard

A dashboard is a graphical user interface (GUI) that displays information and data in an organized, easy-to-read format. Dashboards are often used to provide real-time monitoring and analysis of data and are typically designed for a specific purpose or use case. Dashboards can be used in a variety of settings, such as business, finance, manufacturing, healthcare, and many other industries. They can be used to track key performance indicators (KPIs), monitor performance metrics, and display data in the form of charts, graphs, and tables.

Story

A data story is a way of presenting data and analysis in a narrative format, intending to make the information more engaging and easier to understand. A data story typically includes a clear introduction that sets the stage and explains the context for the data, a body that presents the data and analysis logically and systematically, and a conclusion that summarizes the key findings and highlights their implications. Data stories can be told using a variety of mediums, such as reports, presentations, interactive visualizations, and videos.
ADVANTAGES AND DISADVANTAGES

Advantages

1.   Agility

Startups are smaller and less structured. They are also innovative and keep improving their business models, processes, and portfolio. These allow them to adapt to disruptive technologies and changes in market conditions. Established competitors face vested interests, a historic path, and a strong team culture. This makes them resistant to change.

2.   Efficiency (Lean and Mean)

Established companies have high administrative overheads. Startups offer their services in a more efficient, cost-effective and competitive manner. They are likely to be aware of their limitations and tend to focus on their core strengths. This causes them to partner with other small organizations. Customers often benefit with a superior value proposition.

3.   Team Culture

Employees of large corporations get attracted by prestige and big salaries. They easily lose sight of the company's vision, mission and values and the success of its customers. Startup employees form a close-knit community that shares passion, beliefs, and values. They must work together for the good of the company, its customers and the world at large.

4.   Personalization

Startups deliver their products and services with a personal touch. This creates a uniquely personal experience for their customers. Startups also take time to study and understand their customers' business requirements. This allows them to build lasting relationships with specific offerings and responsive solutions.

5.   Versatility

Startup employees multitask and the salesperson could double up as the relationship manager. This adds continuity to customer relationships and enables startups to respond to emergencies. Most startups support learning and have a higher tolerance for mistakes. Both factors enhance the versatility of startup employees.

Disadvantages

1.   Risk

.   Most startups fail within their first year of operations, so the risk of failure is high. Working under such high risk can blur a startup's strategic vision. So they either fail to seize market opportunities or overestimate their sales projections. High risk also hinders a startup's ability to attract experienced and competent staff

2.   Compensation

It takes blood, sweat, and tears to build a company, and long working hours are the norm for startups. The rewards might be low since it takes time to generate revenue and make profits. Some startups give up since it's demotivating to work without proper compensation.

3.   Market Access

Many customers prefer a business that they have worked with over a new startup. Besides it is more expensive to acquire new customers than to retain old ones. Without a customer base, understanding market needs also becomes a real struggle. All these factors combined increase the cost of business development for startups.

4.   Team Composition

Some startups are born out of desperation since the founder could not find or hold on to a job. Such founders often struggle to build a team that the business needs to succeed. A successful startup requires founders/co-directors with complementary personalities and competencies. Even then disagreements can creep in when the going gets tough.

5.   Stress

We did mention that working for a startup is fun, but it could also become very stressful. Low compensation, many responsibilities and long working hours are more or less expected. Add legal prosecution, imminent business failure

APPLICATION

The examples of implementing Big Data for each startup company are different. Therefore, the solutions provided by Big Data can also be different in terms of the type of business, consumers and the area where the business is established. Many startups whose focus is on online transportation are using this Big Data technology. With Big Data startups are easy to get data from consumers. With this data, it can be used to improve services and also make innovations in services.

The application of Big Data at startups makes these startups able to know the activities and know the trends that are mostly carried out by customers. With this they will be able to provide the right recommendations for their customers such as free shipping, vouchers and discounted prices and so on.

The first example of implementing Big Data at startup is personalizing a lot of data. If the previous technology made personalization of data difficult and long to do with Big Data technology, it all feels easier.

CONCLUSION

While the world-changing potential in startups is sometimes overhyped, successful startups do have the potential to create a significant positive impact on the world. And even when startups fail, they still have an impact, especially through the learning the founders, employees, investors and other stakeholders.

Tesla, for example, has led the way in redefining the entire car industry. Ten years ago electric cars seemed at best an oddity, but now they look a great deal like the future of cars. Without the pioneering spirit of Tesla, the car industry itself would have been very unlikely to take this new direction. The positive impact of Tesla on the climate is likely quite significant directly due to their being adopted and indirectly through the entire car industry's shifting to more sustainable solutions.

FUTURE SCOPE

Business analytics has a broad variety of uses and implementations or it has a high scope of business analytics. It can be used for descriptive research in which knowledge is used to explain the situation in the past and present. This kind of descriptive research is used to determine the company's current market position and previous business decision effectiveness.

The method of using data to drive business strategy and results is business analytics. It is experiencing major, disruptive changes that will fundamentally shift the way analytics is thought about by the industry and clients. A key driver of this shift is the exponential growth in data. Also, enterprise-wide widespread acceptance of cloud computing continues to place pressure on enterprises' capabilities to integrate all related data from various data sources.
